Teachers find lap dance doesn't pay

PEP RALLY Two Winnipeg teachers who simulated a lap dance at a student rally are no longer being paid while they wait to learn their fate. A school board trustee says the male and female teachers were originally suspended with pay, but have since been told their suspensions would be changed to be without pay.

The two teachers made sexually suggestive motions during a pep rally at Churchill High School in February, although they remained fully clothed.

Smokes on the sly

60,000 students using contraband, group says

Kids in Ontario are finding it easier to smoke as contraband cigarettes become widely available, says a group trying to crack down on the sale of illegal smokes to teens.

A coalition of health groups is demanding the Ontario government do more to prevent young people from sparking up the illegal cigarettes.

The Ontario Campaign for Action on Tobacco estimates more than 60,000 Ontario students who already smoke are puffing contraband cigarettes.

"It's not just from convenience stores," said Michael Perley, director of the group, as he described where teens are buying the cigarettes. "It's from trunks of cars. It's from backs of vans. It's through parents, through friends."

A supply line starts from the U.S. and brings cigarettes to Canada and onto reserves, in smoke shacks and even in convenience stores, said Perley.

The group is calling for additional resources to municipal authorities, so they can crack down on the black market.

Teenagers in the Niagara region said it's not uncommon to have someone driving around high school parking lots with a truckload of the illegal smokes.

"In high school, it was very easy to get your hands on contraband cigarettes, sometimes it just took a couple of phone calls and you would have somebody there dropping off cigarettes out of the back of their car, bag of 200 cigarettes," said Emily Butko, a 19-year-old university student and member of the Ontario Lung Association.

She said it's difficult for a young person to quit smoking when they can get a bag filled with hundreds of cigarettes for less than $15.

Baggies

- Contraband cigarettes include First Nations-made clear plastic bags — so-called baggies — of 200 cigarettes or tax-free legal brands made off-reserve.
- The Ontario Campaign for Action on Tobacco wants the province to ban the supply of raw materials to unlicensed cigarette manufacturers.
- The coalition also wants to see a health-based marking on each cigarette sold, such as the toll-free number for a smokers helpline.

Carry on! Two bags OK for U.S. flights

Canadians flying to the U.S. can once again take two carry-on bags and personal items with them on a plane. Restrictions on carry-ons were imposed after a botched Christmas Day terror attack on a flight to Detroit from Amsterdam. Canada quickly banned carry-on luggage, then allowed U.S.-bound passengers one carry-on bag and some personal items in January. Transport Minister John Baird, left, said "more robust air security measures" have removed the need for temporary carry-on restrictions. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nathan Phillips not-so-Square

Space's dramatic facelift to include new Peace Garden, restaurant, stage

When the green roof opens at City Hall next month, it will be a historic occasion: The first time the podium between the two towers has been open to the public in 30 years.

But the green roof is significant for another reason. It will mark the first completed step in a multi-million-dollar makeover of Nathan Phillips Square.

Today the city is announcing the remaining $40 million in upgrades that will make the aging mid-'60s square, at the northwest corner of Queen and Bay streets, a more inviting meeting place.

Within weeks, the western side will be partitioned off so the existing skating pavilion-concession stand can be demolished and replaced by a new two-storey restaurant, a permanent stage, the new Peace Garden and a new skating pavilion, much of which should be complete by mid-2011.

The remaining phases will include demolishing the existing Peace Garden and building a new fountain near the middle of the square, adding an information and tourist kiosk on Queen Street upgrading lighting and landscaping, and creating new elevated walkways that will connect to the second storey of the kiosk, restaurant and pavilion.

In the garage beneath, work on a path that will link a new bike storage facility — with 60 lockers and racks with 382 spaces — to Sheraton Place to the south has already begun.

The city set most of the maintenance money aside when the project was first proposed in 2005.

At the time, council suggested that the remaining funds could come from corporate sponsorships, said the city's chief corporate officer, Bruce Bowes, but the city's partnership department found otherwise and the money is coming out of the city's capital budget. THE CANADIAN PRESS

$42.7M

- About $19 million of the $42.7 million full pricetag will be used to repair structural elements such as walkways or the load-bearing concrete pillars underneath the square.
- About $3 million will be spent on upgrading compressors that freeze the artificial ice surface, an improvement that means it will stay open longer each winter.

Out of the maze: Site offers guide to PATH

MALL Toronto's PATH system is one of the city's hidden gems, a collection of tunnels lined with retail outlets that connect commuters underground from Union Station to downtown office buildings and malls.

But the route is poorly signed, hard to navigate and lacks a posted guide to the location or names of the stores that make it the world's largest subterranean mall. A new website to be launched Monday should change that.

Torontopath.com will be the online guide to PATH retailers, and by the end of the year will also offer a mobile application allowing users to search and map stores and services.

It will be the pre-eminent source for the "city under the city," says website owner Don Givelos, who sold a recruiting Internet site he'd operated for more than a decade before setting up this one.

The PATH is a 30-kilometre maze with signage that points downtown workers in the direction of the next building but doesn't provide much help to newcomers who don't know the names and locations of the office towers. And the PATH maps available don't list the stores or services.

The website should bolster traffic to the underground stores that now largely cater to passersby. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Toronto housing market overheating: Royal LePage

REAL ESTATE There are signs that some of Canada's major house markets have become overheated, although most others have shown a more healthy rate of moderate growth, according to a national real-estate sales organization.

Prices for all key housing types were up more than 10 per cent across Canada in the first quarter on a national basis, according to the Royal LePage survey released Thursday

But Toronto and Vancouver prices rose dramatically — about 20 per cent in some cases — and the head of Royal LePage Real Estate Services suggested they may have risen too far in those local markets.

"In Vancouver and Toronto ... the dramatic unit sales fluctuations exhibit a significant degree of market irrationality: Inordinately fearful when faced with poorer markets; and overly enthusiastic when the tables turned," said Phil Soper.

The Royal LePage survey found the average price of detached bungalows in Toronto climbed to $459,107 in the first quarter, up 13.3 per cent from a year ago.

Standard two-storey homes in Toronto were up 13.2 per cent, rising to $562,150 while condo prices rose a more moderate 10 per cent to $317,579. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Drug cost plan relief to buyers, nurses

Reforms set to significantly reduce rising costs

Employers and nurses are relieved by Ontario's plan to scrap pharmacy allowances for generic drugs in a bid to cut soaring drug plan costs, but pharmaceutical industry insiders say patients will see services suffer as a result of funding cuts.

Ontario's public drug system, employer health plans, and people who pay for prescriptions out-of-pocket could soon see the price of generic drugs cut in half, if the provincial legislature passes reforms announced Wednesday to stop generic drug makers from paying shopkeepers for shelf space.

The move is part of Ontario's plan to cut the growth in health-care spending — a soaring bill which all provinces are grappling to get under control.

The Canadian Vehicle Manufacturers' Association, which represents big car companies such as General Motors, Ford and Chrysler that provide health benefits to 100,000 workers, welcomed the Ontario' government's decision Thursday, saying the plan would significantly reduce one of the fastest rising costs of doing business.

The province already spends 10.7 per cent more on drugs per capita than the rest of Canada, the Ontario Nurses' Association said Thursday in a statement applauding the proposal.

Judge gives nod for lawsuit against college

COURT A class action lawsuit alleging George Brown College misled students about what they would get out of a business program has received certification from a judge to proceed.

Two former students of the Toronto college's international business management program allege it didn't have the ability to confer the industry designations it promised. They launched the lawsuit in October 2008, seeking $10 million in damages and an Ontario Superior Court judge has now certified it as a class action suit representing 119 former students.

The allegations have not been proven in court.

Separation good for Canada: Duceppe

TOUR Gilles Duceppe is telling economic and labour leaders in Toronto that a sovereign Quebec is in the best interest of all of Canada.

Duceppe

The Bloc Québécois leader is on a cross-country tour gathering input on sovereignty as the issue simmers on the political back burner.

In Toronto today he has meetings at the C.D. Howe Institute, an economic think-tank, with professors at Glendon College, a bilingual part of York University, and with the Ontario Federation of Labour.

He says sovereignty could be good for Canada, because the country could grow without always having to "have those fights" with Quebec.

Toronto-area MP Peter Kent questioned the timing of Duceppe's tour.

"It's a little strange that at a time he's having trouble selling an outdated concept in his own province he's embarked on a cross-Canada tour to sell it in what I think is a particularly united Canada," he said from his riding in Thornhill.

Cool it, Karzai

That's Ottawa's message to Afghanistan's chief

Afghanistan's president has got Ottawa all riled up.

Defence Minister Peter MacKay reinforced Ottawa's dismay with Hamid Karzai's Taliban musings in meetings Thursday with senior members of the Afghan cabinet.

"We took every opportunity with Afghan ministers and Afghan officials to express Canada's disappointment over the president's comments," MacKay said from Kabul.

"Canada does not want to see the people of Afghanistan, who we have made a commitment to help and protect, punished because of ill-conceived remarks by President Karzai."

The comments come a day after Prime Minister Stephen Harper took Karzai to task for a recent string of anti-Western rants.

According to reports, denied by a Karzai aide, his comments included a warning that he might join the Taliban if allies' pressure to curb corruption doesn't ease.

The troubling rhetoric didn't prevent MacKay from pledging an additional 90 Canadian soldiers and civilians to help train soldiers and police.

The additions bring the number of Canadian troops and civilian trainers in Afghanistan to well over 3,000. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Supreme Court rules against two men in teen sex slaying

Canada's top court has ruled against two men tried in the appalling rape and murder of a 13-year-old Edmonton girl by upholding the conviction of one and sending another back for a new trial. Privacy rules hampering screening

Sex offenders may go unchecked

Some churches and volunteer groups have stopped screening for potential pardoned sex offenders such as Graham James due to newly tightened rules on police database searches.

As the government mulls changes to protect the public, The Canadian Press has learned that stricter enforcement of privacy around criminal records has made it far more cumbersome to weed out volunteers and employees who should not be working with the vulnerable.

The RCMP, which administers the national criminal-records database, reined in access to the computer system in a little-noticed move last December.

The criminal screening issue is getting widespread attention due to revelations that James — a former junior hockey coach who pleaded guilty to sexually assaulting two players and now faces allegations from others — was pardoned in 2007.

Contrary to widespread media reports, the sealed criminal records of James and other pardoned sex offenders are not flagged in a manner that's evident to routine criminal background checks.

The Mounties clamped down on access to the Canadian Police Information Centre database, or CPIC, sharply restricting the amount of information that had been readily and routinely — if technically illegally — released to organizations and employers doing criminal checks with their employees' consent.

Jaffer snubbed in dispute over money: Sources

POLITICS Former MP Rahim Jaffer got tangled in a dispute over money with his Tory caucus colleagues last year, senior party sources told The Canadian Press.

And that falling-out worsened a relationship with the party that was already on the rocks after the 2008 election, making it highly implausible that Jaffer had special access to the halls of power, the insiders say.

Small sum

- Insiders said only a small sum of money was in dispute, perhaps a few hundred dollars.

The Toronto Star has reported that a business acquaintance of Jaffer bragged the former politician had access to Prime Minister Stephen Harper's office.

Conservative sources said Jaffer had been arguing with some MPs over his management of a small fund that paid for snacks and social events for caucus members.

When Jaffer lost his Edmonton seat in the fall 2008 election, Ontario MP Guy Lauzon took over the fund — and that's when the friction ensued.

Man alleges abuse in '80s by bishop

LAWSUIT A bishop facing child-pornography charges in Ontario is being accused in a lawsuit of sexually abusing a former resident of Mount Cashel orphanage in St. John's, N.L.

A statement of claim filed in the Supreme Court of Newfoundland and Labrador accuses Raymond Lahey of simulated anal intercourse and fondling.

The civil lawsuit has been filed by a man who says he was a young boy in 1982 when he first met Lahey, who was a pastoral priest, at the Mount Cashel orphanage.

In the suit, it is alleged that Lahey took the boy on fishing trips and other outings where abuse occurred over the next four years.

Lahey resigned as head of the Catholic diocese of Antigonish, N.S., after he was charged in September with possession of child pornography after his laptop was examined at the Ottawa airport.

None of the allegations made in the statement of claim have been proven in court. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chaos in Kyrgyzstan

Opposition coup brings U.S. military base into question

Kyrgyzstan President Kurmanbek Bakiyev declared from hiding Thursday that he would not surrender to a violent uprising that put the opposition in control of much of the country, home to a U.S. air base key to the war in nearby Afghanistan.

Just after he spoke, automatic weapons fire broke out in the capital miles from the American facility, where flights were at least temporarily halted and troops were confined to the base.

The opposition has seized vital official buildings in Bishkek and elsewhere and was giving orders to at least some security forces, declaring it controlled four of the nation's seven provinces.

Opposition leader Roza Otunbayeva said parliament had been dissolved and she would head an interim government that would rule for six months until elections were held. She urged Bakiyev to resign.

Bakiyev, who has fled the northern capital for his stronghold in the south, told a Russian radio station that "I don't admit defeat in any way."

But he also said he recognized that "even though I am president, I don't have any real levers of power."

Although the opposition has previously voiced objection to the U.S. base, Otunbayeva said there were no plans yet to review the lease that runs out in July and her government would meet U.S. diplomats for talks in Bishkek.

The mountainous former Soviet republic exploded Wednesday after protesters furious over corruption and soaring utility bills stormed government buildings in Bishkek. Riot police fired straight into crowds.

The Health Ministry said at least 74 people were killed and 400 people hospitalized.

Warm weather awakens sleepy city

UrbanCompass

The sight of little kids wearing bathing suits and spraying each other with a garden hose was odd enough. Then the teenagers emerged, moving along the sidewalk in groups, squinting in the bright sunlight like creatures roused from hibernation. The street's elderly matriarchs provided the finishing touch. When they settled on my neighbour's front porch, it officially became summer — at least temporarily.

This year's sudden transition from damp, dark spring to soaring summer heat dramatically illustrated the extent to which weather defines the spirit of the city. The change in clime, and in mood, is usually more gradual and therefore less noticeable.

The cooler weather of the last day or two suggests things are back to normal weather-wise, which means we will ease into summer with a mixture of good, bad and awful days. Earlier this month, however, we catapulted from one season to the next and the transformation in the city was stunning. Almost overnight, we went from being a grey, dreary, inward-looking place, to a place where half-naked children frolic in their yards, teenagers smile and elderly women take to their front porches to watch the neighbourhood go by.

The parks, home to local dogs and their shivering owners for the last six months, filled with people playing games, soaking up the sun or reading something other than a computer screen. An explosion of noise — laughing, talking and shouting — replaced the silence of the grey days.

Winter is not a complete write-off when it comes to bringing the city and its residents together. The streets are beautiful when they are clad in new snow, and when the stuff really piles up, it forces people armed with shovels out of their homes and into their yards, ready to commiserate with neighbours they haven't seen in weeks, even months.

When the snow goes and the days get longer, however, the sun is like a magnet that draws us outside. The first summer-like day in April or May always make me think of a Sudanese friend who moved to Canada years ago.

He arrived in November, suffered through winter and just when he thought he would never be warm again, the sun came out and the daffodils bloomed.

"I can't believe this is the same place," he said. "If it was like this all the time, this country would be full of people."

He had a point.

Credit score falling? Insurance rates may rise

Marketplace

When Dave Frederick's home insurance premium came up for renewal, he got a nasty surprise. The new rate on his Blenheim, Ont., home almost doubled, so he set out to find out why.

You might be surprised by what he discovered.

Like many Canadians, Frederick lost his job in the recession. He's recently had to declare bankruptcy, but has managed to hold onto his house. He says he's never missed an insurance payment.

When he asked his insurance company why his rate hike was so high, they told him they now factor in your credit score when determining your premium.

Plenty of Canadian insurance companies have started using credit scores to help set your rates, saying the lower your score, the more likely you are to make claims. Just say you lose your job — you might hold off on fixing your roof.

There's a bad storm, and your roof leaks. You're more likely to make a claim.

Frederick says it doesn't make sense.

"I'm not going to start making claims because I'm unemployed. I mean, it makes me no money."

It doesn't make sense to most people. A Marketplace poll conducted by Vision Critical found 87 per cent of Canadians don't think insurance companies should be using credit scores. About the same number polled didn't know insurance companies were checking them out.

So, are you paying higher rates because of your credit score? Here are few things to check:

- Check your insurance rates. Have they jumped recently? If so, your credit score could be the reason.
- You can check your credit scores with companies such as Equifax or TransUnion. If your score seems low, ask why. The agency might be able to suggest ways of improving it.
- Ask your insurance company if it uses your credit score as a factor in determining your rate. Not all companies do, so if you're not happy with the practice, shop around.

Wendy Mesley is a co-host of Marketplace, which airs each Friday at 8:30 p.m. on CBC Television.

It's 'adapt or die'

Strong loonie poses a challenge for businesses

The strong Canadian dollar is forcing businesses into an unhappy choice, says a new study — do the hard slogging and adapt, or do nothing and die.

With the loonie now expected to hover around parity for years, the Conference Board of Canada says firms that innovate, invest and go international will prosper, and those that don't — particularly manufacturers — will rust away.

The adjustment will be painful for both businesses and the Canadian economy, the think-tank says, but there is no longer any choice.

"We're having a challenge right now that people are loving us to death," said report author Glen Hodgson, the board's chief economist. "The world sees Canada as a safe place to invest. That's why we think, along with many others, that the dollar is going to be strong for a long time."

For many businesses, "It's adapt or die," he added.

There is evidence that manufacturing has already started to wither away. UBS Securities notes that from 2002, when the loonie began its climb, exports in real terms as a portion of gross domestic product have plunged 14 percentage points, representing 553,000 manufacturing jobs.

Low interest rates likely here to stay

BANKING A new report from CIBC World Markets says that Canada's interest rates should remain "very low" through 2011, even if the Bank of Canada raises rates this summer.

The report suggests overnight rates will likely hold at around 1.25 per cent until the end of this year, and probably won't go any higher than 2.5 per cent by the end of 2011.

The Bank of Canada is widely expected to begin hiking rates in late June or July. THE CANADIAN PRESS

MINING Shares in miner Centerra Gold Inc. were under pressure Thursday following political unrest in Kyrgyzstan, where it operates its key mine. The Toronto miner's stock fell more than seven per cent in early trading on the TSX, losing 89 cents to $11.10 after losing 11.5 per cent in Wednesday trading. Its shares also fell more than 13 per cent on the German stock market. However, the company said that its mine has been unaffected by the unrest in Bishkek, 430 kilometres away.

Old Habits Die Hard

Consumers Remain Complacent About Rising Car Insurance Rates

What Does Your Renewal Notice Say?

If you're like many consumers, your renewal notice is coming up again, a day you always dread. How much will your rate increase this year? With rates increasing by an average of almost 10% over the last 12 months across Ontario insurers, chances are your rate is going up again, even if your driving record has not changed. You might figure there is no point shopping around for a better rate since everyone's rates seem to be increasing. Better to at least save your time by signing back the renewal, just like you do every year, right? Wrong. You can save time and money on your car insurance…if you know where to look.

How Do I Break The Cycle?

First, you need to realize that you have control over your car insurance costs – you just need to exercise it. And the simplest way to do that is to shop around. Why? Because despite what you've heard about rising car insurance rates, the size of the increase can vary significantly from one company to the next and from one driver to another. The truth is that rates charged by different insurance companies to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the same coverage, can vary by hundreds and even thousands of dollars. Take a look at the table below.

Have you tried shopping for a better rate in the past and found yourself spending hours on the phone, calling around to various insurance companies to get quotes, only to find you still can't get a better deal? Do not despair, InsuranceHotline.com can help by instantly providing quotes from over 30 insurance companies to find you the lowest rate available. Best of all, the service is absolutely FREE.

Don't Be Fooled By Others Offering To "Compare Quotes"

Unlike most of its competitors, InsuranceHotline.com does not sell insurance, is not a licensed broker or agent, and is not owned in whole or in part by an insurance company. This allows InsuranceHotline.com to be completely unbiased when providing insurance quotes and keeps its focus solely on finding the lowest insurance rates for consumers.

By contrast, most websites offering to "compare insurance quotes" are owned by or affiliated with insurance brokers or agents and are therefore only capable of quoting rates from the limited number of insurance companies they represent, typically no more than 4 or 5.

Start Saving Your Money Now

There is no better time to break the habit. Before you sign back your renewal, take 10 minutes and let InsuranceHotline.com help you shop around for a lower rate. With quotes from over 30 top insurance companies, InsuranceHotline.com is the simplest and easiest way to make sure you aren't overpaying for your car insurance. So don't wait another minute. Go online to InsuranceHotline.com and start saving your money now.

Drug retailers feel pain of provincial crackdown

Investors in Canada's largest pharmacy retailers are feeling the pain of Ontario's move to prevent generic drug makers from paying shopkeepers for shelf space.

Shoppers Drug Mart's stock plunged 9.8 per cent in heavy trading Thursday that began shortly after markets opened. More than 14.6 million shares changed hands, with the price dropping by $4.25 to $38.92.

The Toronto-based company is Ontario's dominant pharmacy chain. It had warned Wednesday that a provincial government crackdown would have dire consequences for it and other drug retailers.

Jean Coutu Group, which operates the largest chain of pharmacies in neighbouring Quebec, also saw its shares plummet. The company's stock fell 59 cents or almost six per cent to $9.30 on the TSX. Nearly 1.4 million shares changed hands.

Deb Matthews

Ontario Health Minister Deb Matthews announced the plan Wednesday, saying the province was scrapping the allowance that pharmacists receive on generic drugs.

Matthews said the province's goal is to reduce drug costs by half and make prescription medications available to more people.

The Ministry of Health said it would continue to ensure pharmacists are fairly compensated for helping patients by increasing dispensing fees by at least $1 for every Ontario Drug Benefit prescription filled.

There will also be $150 million, including a new $100-million fund, to compensate pharmacy owners for the professional services they provide.

Raps broadcaster headed south, is Bosh next?

WeekendRap

John Chick
john.chick@metronews.ca

While it remains to be seen whether the Raptors lose Chris Bosh this summer, they are already losing another member of the organization stateside this spring. Raptors NBA TV host Adnan Virk, who also appears on Leafs TV and Gol TV Canada, and previously worked at The Score, has accepted a job with ESPN in Bristol, Conn.

In doing so, Virk joins a select group of Canadian broadcasters — including John Saunders, Mark Jones, Dan Shulman and David Amber — who made the move to the powerhouse U.S. sports network.

I wish him all the best, and I know ESPN is right in his wheelhouse.

If Bosh has indeed played his last game as a Raptor, what else can you say, other than it would be a good time for the Raptors to debut their own Ewing Theory?

In reality, however, this team was toast months ago. Defence has been a myth in Raptorland all year, and they currently sit third worst in the NBA in points allowed per game.

While 9-17 since the all-star break is bad, what's worse is only winning two games on the road against plus-.500 teams all season.

Hedo Turkoglu is now officially an albatross, and his current day-to-day status with his own nasal injury could be considered redundant, since he has appeared in name alone in half the games he's played since the beginning of March.

Sunday's game against Chicago is huge, but whatever transpires in the next week won't deviate from the script this franchise wrote last summer.

A mediocre race to a red light.

Woods still has it

Tiger Woods shot a 4-under-par 68 Thursday, his best score ever on the first day of the Masters despite a five-month layoff tied to a sex scandal.

ROB CARR/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tiger Woods hits off the first fairway during the first round of the Masters golf tournament in Augusta, Ga., on Thursday.

Woods made eagles at the eighth and 15th holes — the first time he's had multiple eagles in a Masters round. Also, he had never started with a score lower than 70 until Thursday, when he put himself just two strokes behind the surprising leader, 50-year-old Fred Couples.

"Why play if you don't think you're going to win?" Woods said. "If I don't think I can win, I won't enter the event."

The world's No. 1 player is off to a good start for his fifth green jacket, and his score could have been even lower. He lipped out four putts.

Still, no complaints after being away from the game so long and enduring plenty of ridicule over his personal life, which fell apart after a November night car crash led to revelations of multiple extramarital affairs.

Even so, he heard nothing but cheers from the Augusta National fans.

"It was unbelievable, the whole day," Woods said.

"The people, I haven't heard them cheer this loud in all my years coming here. It certainly helped keep my spirits up."

Mike Weir of Bright's Grove, Ont., the 2003 champion, shot a 1-under 71.

VS

Vernon Wells kicked off his comeback tour with a homer display in his hometown.

Wells hit his fourth homer in three games and the Toronto Blue Jays rallied for three runs in the ninth against closer Frank Francisco to beat the Texas Rangers 3-1 on Thursday.

Wells, who grew up in Arlington, is coming off a disappointing season which could be blamed in part on a nagging wrist problem. He finished with 15 homers and 66 RBIs, his fewest in each category since becoming a regular in 2002.

Wells became the first Blue Jay to homer in each of the first three games of the season.

"He's been awesome, absolutely great," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said. "It's just what we needed. You don't expect him to hit home runs like that, but something close would be nice."

Wells went 6-for-10 and drove in seven runs to help the Blue Jays take two of three against the team he followed as a kid.

Casey Janssen (1-0) struck out the side in the eighth, and Jason Frasor got three outs for his second save in three chances.

'She's a fighter, she's a survivor'

Swedish actress digs into spunky role of Lisbeth Salander

Noomi Rapace and Michael Nyqvist star in The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo.

The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo opens next Friday

You can't read her p-p-p-poker face — and don't try figuring out her tattoo, either.

As Lisbeth Salander, the genius sociopath computer hacker of Sweden's phenomenal Millennium thriller trilogy of novels by the late Stieg Larsson, Noomi Rapace is like a cyberpunk Lady Gaga, minus the lust for fame.

Her nose, eyebrow, lips and ears are covered with piercings. A shock of black hair covers nearly half her face and a ring of spikes adorns her neck.

Then there's her full-back body painting, a mysterious icon that looks as if it were created in Satan's own needle den.

It's the main image of The Girl With the Dragon Tattoo, the book and now movie (opening next Friday) that introduced Lisbeth Salander to the world, creating a franchise that rivals Twilight and The Da Vinci Code for blockbuster sales and fan devotion.

The book has sold 30 million copies worldwide in 44 languages, more than 350,000 copies in Canada. The film, the first of three, has already grossed $100 million (U.S.).

Everything about Salander only gets weirder, as does the Larsson series through the remaining volumes of the Millennium trilogy, The Girl Who Played With Fire and The Girl Who Kicked the Hornet's Nest.

How much of this is the punk, and how much is the real Rapace? It's a little bit of both, actually.

The self-taught Swedish actress, who successfully fought all comers to grab one of the hottest casting assignments of the 21st century, admits to having both an aggressive and a "girly" side to her.

Her first name is pronounced "know-me," but that's hard to do.

"The piercings were real, but not the tattoos!" a laughing Rapace, 30, said from London

"When I was 14 or 15, I had many interesting piercings and I was some kind of punk rocker. And I have always been on my own. I moved from my mother's and my stepfather's when I was 15 and have been taking care of myself since I was young. So I think that I'm also a survivor and I'm pretty stubborn."

Rapace began acting at age seven after taking a non-speaking role in a Swedish film. Her work since then has been mostly on stage or TV, but her award-winning performance as a downward-spiralling teen mom in the harrowing 2007 Danish film Daisy Diamond added "movie star" to her many accolades.

Rapace is well known across Scandinavia — she gets stopped in the streets for autographs — but notoriety alone wasn't enough to land the role of Salander.

"I knew I could change into her, but I didn't think they could imagine how I would be able to transform myself. So I was very surprised when they called me and wanted me to come in and do an interview."

What is it, though, that made her want to play Salander, a character of such extremes? She commits acts of violence but she's also the victim of horrific brutality.

"I like the fact that she's a fighter. She's a survivor. She doesn't accept being a victim." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

I'm not entirely sure where Date Night would be without Tina Fey and Steve Carell.

After all, the two television comedians-turned-big screen stars take what is an overly familiar premise, directed by an often critically-aloof filmmaker, and turn it into a thoroughly entertaining evening at the multiplex.

The pair play Phil and Claire, a bored, married New Jersey couple who try to spice up their weekly "date night" by spontaneously going to a trendy new restaurant in Manhattan.

Finding the establishment booked solid, they take another couple's reservation only to get through the risotto before two corrupt cops with ties to the mafia escort them into an alley and demand a mysterious flash drive.

From there, the mistaken marrieds end up on the run, a situation which soon generates for the twosome a race through Central Park, an awkward pole dance in a strip club, a quirky "Siamese" car chase, and the recurring and perpetually shirtless Mark Wahlberg (as a sympathetic security expert).

As inventive as that may sound however, those sequences would be nowhere if not for Carell and Fey spicing up the script with authentic chemistry and an immaculate sense of timing.

They indeed perfect the nuances of suburbanites in over-their-head with the same loveable charm that has made them respective TV stars.

In fact, a hilarious string of outtakes over the end-credits even alludes that the pair may have actually improvised the film's best moments.

Director Shawn Levy (The Pink Panther) is smart to let his leads carry the picture and by focusing on keeping the action fast-paced (the movie is a tight 87 minutes), he makes this Date Night definitely one to remember.

TV superstars Steve Carell and Tina Fey put their comic timing to full use in Date Night.

Eclipse a masterpiece

The Eclipse

Director: Conon McPherson
Stars: Aidan Quinn, Ciaran Hinds
Classification: STC
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

CHRIS ALEXANDER

Aidan Quinn in The Eclipse.

REVIEW The classic ghost story movie has never relied on blood, guts and special effects to goose its audience, and even something as expensive and visceral as Poltergeist relied more on character and family dynamic to involve and disrupt viewers than any of its ample visual razzle dazzle.

But Irish filmmaker Conor McPherson's new film The Eclipse is something special, an emotionally resonant horror show that combines the dissonant thrills of The Others and the Sixth Sense with a quiet, sometimes unbearable melancholy.

Ciaran Hinds (in a magnetic turn) plays a haunted man, still mourning the death of his wife while raising his two daughters alone. As he goes about his days — and in particular, his nights — haunted, weighed down by loss, he starts experiencing jarring supernatural phenomena, sequences that are guaranteed to raise hackles.

When he becomes involved as a driver for two wildly diverse authors, a strange volatile romantic triangle develops. As tensions mount, the drama deepens and the ghosts keep rattling their chains.

The Eclipse is a real find. An intelligent, sensitive and often unbearably scary ghost story that combines a serious, impassioned love story with the primal terror of losing a loved one — and having them possibly return — with disarming results.

Hinds is fantastic as is Aidan Quinn as his romantic nemesis but the real star of the film is director McPherson, who takes his time with the film, never overselling either the emotion or the frights and framing every dark, delicious shot with painterly care.

It's a shame The Eclipse isn't getting a wider release. It's something of a minor masterpiece and , if time is kind, it might just become a classic.

Ford aboard Cowboys & Aliens

Harrison Ford has joined the cast of Cowboys & Aliens, director Jon Favreau has confirmed. Based on the graphic novel, the movie will see Daniel Craig, Ford and Olivia Wilde going up against nasty invading aliens in the old west. EMPIRONLINE.COM

Shine of simple pleasures

A Shine of Rainbows

Director: Vic Sarin
Stars: Aidan Quinn, Connie Nielsen, John Bell
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●

KUMAR SAHA
Metro Canada

John Bell makes his feature film debut in Vic Sarin's A Shine of Rainbows.

You could call it predictable. But veteran Canadian filmmaker Vic Sarin's A Shine of Rainbows makes a virtue of its simple pleasures.

Take the storyline for instance. Based on a novel by Scottish writer Lillian Beckwith, the narrative revolves around eight-year-old Tomas (newcomer John Bell), who is picked up from a drab orphanage (is there any other kind?) by the resolutely maternal Maire O'Donnell (Connie Nielsen) and taken to her idyllic, rural home off the Irish coast.

Maire's opens her heart to the timid boy but her husband Alec (Aidan Quinn) rebuffs any efforts toward paternal bonding with an air of cold detachment. Of course, tragedy strikes and when it does, the limits of these newfangled relationships are tested in well-worn ways of your average family melodrama.

Sarin's symbolism is equally typical throughout the film, splashing shades of joy and uplift with rich reds and yellows and moments of despair with duller hues. In fact, the wardrobe choices for Maire — undoubtedly the film's beating heart — constantly reinforce the hopeful buoyancy of the film's title.

Most films would sink under the unbearable lightness of such PG-rated conventions. But, in this case, the breathtaking visuals of Ireland's Donegal County (Sarin also handled the film's cinematography) and the director's clarity of vision, however modest, lift Rainbows out of its own triteness.

Both Quinn and Bell give adequate performances but it's Nielsen who packs the punch, pushing the film beyond its several made-for-TV moments.

Like Sarin's previous film Partition (2007), Rainbows doesn't aim to dazzle.

It's just happy to shine a little feelgood light on you and your family.

Hunt powerful thriller

The Wild Hunt

Director: Alexandre Franchi
Stars: Ricky Mabe, Mark Krupa
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●½

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Perhaps it's our outsider-looking-in mentality living next to America but Canadians have had a respectable tradition of crafting odd subcultures with a refined sense of artistry.

The latest filmic foray in this arena is The Wild Hunt, Alexandre Franchi's exploration of LARP (Live Action Role Playing), an underground world where people gather in a forest with foam swords and live in character as Vikings, elves and warriors.

In The Wild Hunt, put-upon Erik (Ricky Mabe) discovers his girlfriend has left him to join thousands of weapon-wielding LARPers at a remote medieval village as a kidnapped princess for the annual Big Battle Weekend. Setting out to rescue her with the help of his LARP-obsessed brother (Mark Krupa, who also co-wrote the film) he arrives at the wooded retreat only to find the lines between fantasy and reality have become violently unclear.

While Franchi is careful not to turn the fantasy into farce, he cleverly juggles the eccentricity of the event with heartfelt charm and humour. It is easy to see that he and Krupa aren't just fans of escapism but respectful of the art. Franchi's crew even filmed in costume at a real LARP co-op outside Montreal amongst actual participants.

As fun as it sounds, The Wild Hunt actually works (it won Best Canadian First Feature at last year's Toronto International Film Festival) because it's a powerful lo-fi thriller that captures the tragic themes of William Golding's Lord of the Flies. Believe me, as goofy as that fur-clad Viking may appear, Franchi shows there is potential for extreme violence in all of us.

Shot of laughter in big city blues

If you've only ever seen New York projected onto a screen it's understandable that you may have a skewed idea of what the city is all about. Charles Bronson made a career of showing the city's down, dirty and dangerous side in the Death Wish films and The Warriors didn't exactly earn high marks from the NYC Tourist Bureau.

Even comedies frequently paint the Big Apple as a scary place. Sure, romantic comedies make the city look great but there is a tradition of setting hapless comedic characters loose in Gotham with predictably chaotic — for instance, see After Hours, a Martin Scorsese trip through the mean streets of NYC — though funny results.

This weekend's Date Night sees two of television's funniest actors, Tina Fey and Steve Carell, as an average married couple who get pulled into New York's seedy underbelly after a case of mistaken identity.

It's a funny premise that breathes the same air as another forty year old film. Neil Simon originally planned to write the story of Gwen and George (Sandy Dennis and Jack Lemmon), an Ohio couple who experience the worst of NYC life, as a chapter in his Broadway play Plaza Suite, but as the tale grew to include a series of calamities — exploding manhole covers!

Jack Lemmon played a hapless Ohio man caught in big, bad New York City in the original version of The Out-of-Towners.

Cuban protestors! — the playwright realized he needed a larger canvas and wrote it directly for the screen.

The Out-of-Towners (later remade starring Goldie Hawn and Steve Martin) set the template for the indignant, put-upon NYC tourist comedy. In this story even the police sympathize with — and maybe even envy — the unlucky day-trippers.

"You folks live out of town?" asks Officer Meyers.

"Oh yes," replies Gwen.

"You're lucky," says the cop.

King Shadov, an exiled king played by Charlie Chaplin in A King in New York has better luck, but just barely. Shot in 1957 but not released until 1973 because of its rapier jabs at American culture, the film follows a monarch who arrives in NYC only to discover his bank accounts have been drained.

Broke and on unfamiliar terrain he clashes with the American way-of-life, denouncing rock and roll, CinemaScope and Joseph McCarthy's communist hunt. It's one of Chaplin's best — although lesser known — films and would make a great double feature with Date Night.

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.

Movie morsels

Alice In Wonderland

REVIEW Tim Burton was born to adapt the surrealist fantasy Alice In Wonderland. The visually inspired filmmaker is known for the twisted imagination and affection for the bizarre needed to translate Lewis Carroll's classic universe to the screen. From a technical standpoint, his film is a triumph. The eye-candy will captivate anyone watching with those new-fangled 3-D glasses. However, there's little going on to stimulate audiences beyond the visual flourishes. Burton regulars Johnny Depp and Helena Bonham Carter unsurprisingly steal all or their scenes.

Phil Brown/For Metro Canada

Chloe

REVIEW Despite being a remake of a French film, the new movie from Atom Egoyan bears all the earmarks of the director's work. Continuing his career long examination of sexual taboos and miscommunication he's made a movie that is part sexual Scheherazade, part Single White Female but is also his most straightforward movie in years. Starring Amanda Seyfried as an escort hired by Catherine (Julianne Moore) to test her husband's (Liam Neeson) fidelity, it's a steamy thriller the director calls "an extreme examination of how to re-eroticize a marriage." There is no question that Egoyan is as gifted a filmmaker as we have working in this country, but Chloe, I'm afraid doesn't denote a high-water mark in his filmography.

Music

Spring ushers in the urban thump

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

metronews.ca/soundcheck

"Music and cars have gone together for more than a hundred years."

With the warm weather and the opportunity to sleep with open windows comes the return of the Urban Thump Machine, those cars with the 1000-watt subwoofers that can be heard coming six blocks away, usually at about 2:30 a.m.

Music and cars have gone together for more than a hundred years. As far as anyone seems to remember, the first car radio actually predated radio itself. The Auto Wireless No. 1 was displayed at a fair in Missouri in 1904, more than two years before Canadian inventor Reginald Fessenden figured out how to broadcast voice and music through the air. I'm guessing that it wasn't a big seller.

By the 1920s, it was possible to order a radio for your Chevy, but they were big, bulky, fragile things susceptible to spark interference from the engine, meaning the only way to actually listen to it was with the motor off — not a great selling feature for an option that added more than $200 to the price of a car that sold for $800. Then in 1930, Motorola demonstrated the 5T71, a radio that could both operate while the engine was running and survive the rough roads of the day. Listening to the radio in the car took off.

In 1956, Chrysler brands offered an in-dash turntable — seriously — that played both the new-ish 45 RPM singles as well as special discs running at 16 2/3 RPM that could only be purchased from dealerships. But like the early car radios, they didn't work so well when the vehicle was in motion and were discontinued after just one year. It wasn't until the 8-track appeared in 1966 model Fords that drivers had a reliable (well, comparatively reliable) format that allowed them to choose their own music while on the road.

The cassette player was a big improvement when it came along in the 1970s and reigned supreme until the 1990s when CD players became tough enough to withstand the harsh automobile environment. Meanwhile, the era of the in-dash cassette player has apparently ended. The 2010 Lexus SC430 convertible — apparently the last model from a major manufacturer to offer a cassette player as standard equipment — has a new stereo. It now comes with a six-pack changer.

And how long will the CD player last? Show me a car with a built-in iPhone dock and I just might buy it.

Fanfarlo's rich instrumentation, lush harmonies and pounding percussion have led many to compare the band to Arcade Fire.

Allies in indie rock

British five-piece Fanfarlo enjoys Arcade Fire comparisons

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

It can be tough being compared to one of the most popular indie acts in the world, but Simon Balthazar, Fanfarlo's lead singer, doesn't mind being mentioned in the same breath as Arcade Fire.

"They're a great band," he says. "But it's the same old. We leave trying to compare ourselves to other people, we prefer to let the music speak for itself."

It's easy to see why this British five-piece get compared to Montreal's favourite sons — they dabble in the same rich instrumentation, lush harmonies and pounding percussion as the Arcade Fire.

But the band have a number of other acts in them too — there's some Coldplay on the thundering I'm A Pilot and Beirut-like orchestration makes it way onto a whole bunch of tunes. Ultimately, Reservoir, the group's debut, is a brooding listen with layers upon layers of sounds. On I'm a Pilot Fanfarlo recorded 100 guitars.

"We rounded up every guitar we could find and all of us, and people in the studio and our friends — we got everyone in the room and played the song over and over again," says Balthazar. "We also spent hours doing layers of stomping and clapping."

Not every song took hours to record, but on the band's next disc — which they hope to start recording in a few weeks — it's likely the group will spend much more time in the studio than they have in the past.

"That's definitely the sort of thing we're interested in doing," he explains. "We just recoded a new song and again spent a lot of time playing around with percussion and layering. We're not the kind of band to go into the studio and plug in a couple amps and bust it out."

They're also going to keep using weird instruments when they get the chance. On Reservoir the group used "boxes full of rubbish" to create a shaker-like device. On the recent song they recorded, Balthazar says, "I found myself playing coconuts".

Whatever they play, it's clear that fans are flocking to band. They received rave reviews for their recent SXSW gig and Balthazar admits that more often than not their shows are sold out. Still, he's trying not to let the attention go to his head.

"We try not to analyze it too much," he says. "To some extent we've been in a bubble being in a van all the time. But we notice things have been going well and people are paying attention."

In Concert

- Fanfarlo will be in Toronto for a concert at Lee's Palace on Friday night ($12).

Slash gets help from Fergie, Ozzy and a range of other singers on his new album

KEITH CARMAN
for Metro Canada

Aviator shades, tight black ringlets and a foot-high top hat?

It's gotta be Slash.

Having founded legendary rock acts such as Guns N' Roses (GNR) and Velvet Revolver — not to mention penning some of the genre's most enduring tunes — guitarist Saul "Slash" Hudson is an unmistakable fixture in the annals of pop culture.

Still, while discussing the release of his 14-track eponymous solo effort, Hudson admits that even after a quarter-century in the spotlight, he's still a wreck when the curtain rises.

"I have butterflies every time I get on stage, man," he smiles sincerely, noting that such tension actually enhances his performances. "That kind of anticipation that makes you edgy; give it everything which is good, 'cause I think if (playing live) was like going to the bathroom for me, it'd be pretty boring."

Such apprehension is exactly what Hudson reveals culling inspiration from when creating his namesake record. Striving to break out of familiar confines without alienating fans, the album features an amalgam of his own inimitable sound/style and the voices of artists he felt best suited the riffs at hand regardless of background. End results range from the obvious (appearances by The Cult's Ian Astbury, Iggy Pop and Ozzy Osbourne) to surprising encounters with Black Eyed Peas chanteuse Fergie, members of Maroon 5, Avenged Sevenfold and Kid Rock.

"If I made a wish list of singers, it would be endless. I just wrote the music and thought about who would sound great singing on it. A lot of people wondered how the hell it was gonna work," he declares, confessing that he was one of them until hearing the final product.

"It goes into certain directions but you don't get jerked into any particular style. I'm not forcing you to digest something you don't want to — I hope."

Then again, seeing as free lyrical reign was granted to each track's respective singer, Hudson realizes that maybe he is unwittingly imposing certain viewpoints. He doesn't mind though, so long as they're not offensive. To that extent, he notes finding a deep connection with Wolfmother's Andrew Stockdale on By The Sword. Or so he thinks.

"I guess someone could have written something like when I had to deal with (racially-tinged GNR track) One In A Million back in the day and I would've been, 'Whoa!' But everybody did their own thing and I could relate to most of them personally."

Debut of Slash

- He's recorded with Guns N' Roses, Slash's Snakepit and Velvet Revolver in the past, but Slash's self-titled new album is the first true solo album of his career.

Glee star Mark Salling's attention-getting Mohawk was one of the reasons behind his casting on the hit show.

Mark Salling's gleeful break

Singer's hair landed him role of a lifetime on hit show

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

For Glee star Mark Salling, winning the role of high school bad boy Puck was all about the hair — an attention-grabbing Mohawk that made him stand out from the crowd.

Glee returns with a new episode Tuesday

"That was my idea for the audition. I wanted to set myself apart," says the Dallas, Texas, native. "They decided to stick with it." Salling, 27, might want to rethink dumping the hair. You don't want to mess with success.

And let's face it, it's been nothing but success so far for the fledgling series — which recently won a Golden Globe for best comedy/musical.

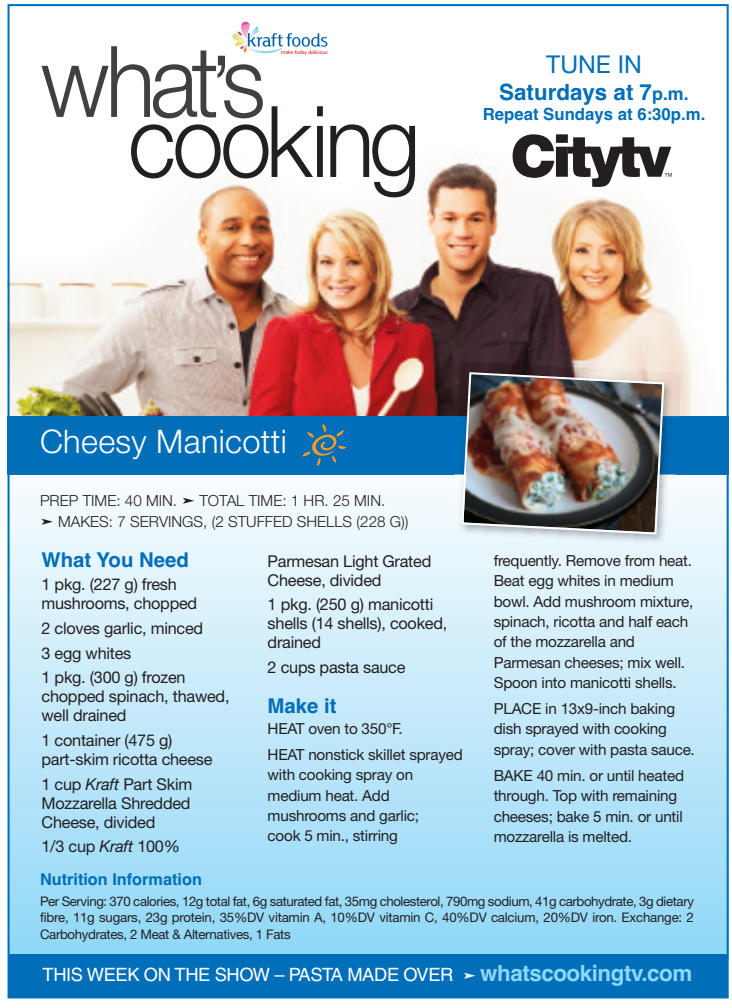
The show's appeal also appears to have no cultural barriers. On this day, Salling is fielding interviews from reporters in Australia, Spain, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Mexico and Singapore.

Still, for Salling — an established singer/musician who plays multiple instruments — the show remains a challenge. "I wasn't in the glee club in school. I did more the traditional rock band," he says.

"Music has always been a part of my life. But I'm not a dancer. Sometimes it is difficult. But that's why we have a great choreographer."

Salling doesn't see too much of himself in the character of tough guy Puck. "At certain times I channel some of the douche bags I went to school with," he laughs. "I expect they'll be trying to soften him (Puck) a little in the future."

As for his own music career — he's already released an album — Salling counts Radiohead and Coldplay as influences, which isn't exactly in keeping with Glee's musical songbook. Still, Salling wouldn't turn down the opportunity to write a song for the show. "Well, I try not to press it," he says. "But I would consider it an honour if it happened."



In brief

REALITY TV Reality star and supermom Kate Gosselin is launching a series that will profile everyday women facing personal challenges.
Twist of Kate will follow Gosselin as she visits the homes and workplaces of her subjects, where she will exchange insights for living.
The 12-episode season will premiere late in the summer, the TLC network said Thursday.
The now-single mother of young twins and sextuplets, Gosselin will also revisit her family life for a series of Kate Plus 8 specials beginning in June. No word if ex-husband Jon will be participating.

Oprah to make night move

Talk show queen will air program on new network

Daytime superstar Oprah Winfrey will be moving to nighttime to host a show on her new cable channel.

Oprah's Next Chapter, an hourlong show, will release Winfrey from the studio and her longtime talk-show format for conversations and travel around the world, the Oprah Winfrey Network announced Thursday.

The show is expected to be a key ingredient of OWN, and guarantees Winfrey will regularly appear on the 24-hour network she'll be largely programming from behind the scenes. It will premiere in late 2011 after Winfrey ends her weekday syndicated talk show at the close of its 25th season.

Oprah Winfrey

In other Oprah news, the four Canadian boys from MTV's The Buried Life are about to get a golden opportunity that wasn't even on their all-important list: the chance to sit on Oprah's couch.

Dave Lingwood, Ben Nemtin and Duncan and Jonnie Penn will be guests on The Oprah Winfrey Show on Friday.

The quartet will discuss their series and reveal a few surprises to Winfrey.

The four friends from Victoria have travelled around the continent with a list of 100 things to do before they die.

Going Out

Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

1 MacGruber

TV Yet another Saturday Night Live sketch is being fleshed out for theatres, and to mark the occasion, one of the stars of MacGruber, Ryan Phillippe, is hosting SNL on April 17. Let's assume there will be a MacGruber — it opens in May — sketch on the show. This is, after all, cross-promotion at its best.

2 Clash of the Titans

FILM It seems the gods aren't so crazy after all — well, the studio executives at least. The remake of the 1981 movie debuted at No. 1 last weekend, taking in $61.4 million during the three-day holiday period. The film's audience was roughly split, with 52 per cent taking in the 3-D version and the rest opting for 2-D.

3 Double Down

FOOD Kentucky Fried Chicken has introduced its latest culinary offering in parts of the United States, and it's a new take on bun-less. The new "sandwich" features two breaded pieces of chicken filled with cheese, bacon and mayonnaise. KFC says there are no plans yet to offer it in Canada.

4 Glee

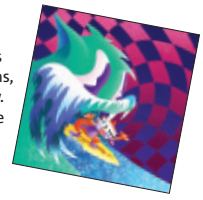
TV Everyone's favourite group of singing students returns to TV after a brief winter hiatus. While the latest plot twists are of interest, we're more keen to see what songs the students of William McKinley High School will interpret this time.

5 Defendor

DVD Woody Harrelson's Hamilton and Dundas, Ont.,-shot superhero comedy Defendor flies onto store shelves on Tuesday. The film is about an everyman who, unlike that show-off Superman or fancy toy-carrying Batman, uses homemade gadgets to fight crime.

6 MGMT — Congratulations

MUSIC The Brooklyn band's new album, Congratulations, is officially out this Tuesday. Many of the songs from the new release are available on the band's website, whoismgmt.com



7 Dancing with the Stars

POP CULTURE The toe-tapping celebrity dance contest leapt over the wannabe-singers of American Idol in the ratings this week, marking the first time Dancing with the Stars has surpassed the juggernaut. Many are pointing to the polarizing Kate Gosselin as the reason for the show's recent success.

Harry Potter science exhibit sure to spellbound

JOHN KEILLOR
for Metro Canada

Magic and storytelling are under the microscope starting this weekend as Harry Potter: The Exhibition, opens at the Ontario Science Centre.

Visitors get to see hundreds of real artifacts from the films, like Hermoine Granger's actual time-turner, and the original sorcerer's stone. Several sets are recreated in nine complete installations, including the class rooms at Hogwarts, and Hagrid's Hut.

Because Harry Potter's fanbase is huge, for this weekend only, the OSC will be open until midnight.

"Everything on display is so beautifully crafted, it's like they're centuries old," says Christine Crosbie, Media Relations Officer for the OSC, by phone. "They really set the imagination on fire. That's part of why we mounted the exhibition, to turn on people's curiosity and give them access to the rest of the science centre.

"The price of the ticket allows attendees to see the entire facility," she adds.

Whether or not people manage to get past this new main attraction and on to the hard science will depend on their stamina. This Harry Potter exhibit is enormous. It covers 13,000 square feet. It took 18 tractor trailers to bring everything in, and 32,000 man hours to set up the entire exhibition, which will not be seen anywhere else in Canada.

"This exhibition was a huge success at science centres in Boston and Chicago," explains Crosbie. "They wanted to explore the connection between science and creativity. Scientists are inspired by stories and movies, just like everyone else. "

This exhibition brings people literally inside the movie series. Viewers get to actually participate in a game of Quiddich, in a perfectly recreated set that includes real costumes and props, and even the coveted Quidditch World Cup. For many fans, that will be a mind-blowing experience. And still, there in the centre remains the history of scientific inquiry open to explore. After all, it was science and technology that made the dazzling Harry Potter movies possible in the first place.

The exhibition, in its own way, plays homage to the scientific minds that help make life great, and movies more spectacular.

Sudden scientific curiosity may strike you in Hogarts Great Hall, with its floating lit candles. You may feel that wondrous weight of scholarship and magic. Seeing the Yule Ball in real life make you want to become a wizard yourself. And everyone knows that scientists are the real wizards of this world.

"Everything on display is so beautifully crafted."
Christine Crosbie, Ontario Science Centre

TV leading food debate

Top chefs are getting people to focus on healthy eating

Jamie Oliver is using fresh fruit and vegetables to try to win the hearts, or at least the fatty arteries, of a West Virginia city. Rachael Ray is working to reform school lunches. And Paula Deen, queen of Southern-fried goodness, recently taught an auditorium of kids how to cook and eat healthy.

Chefs have always wanted us to eat something good. Now, it seems they're just as interested in seeing that we eat well.

"They're digging down to more substance, which is great because we all win," says Phil Lempert, the food marketing expert known as The Supermarket Guru. "Before it was cleavage and being cute to get noticed. Now it's all about substance, nutrition."

This didn't happen overnight.

Pioneers like California chef Alice Waters and, more recently, journalist Michael Pollan have been preaching the gospel of fresh, unadulterated food for years.

But when everyone from Deen to Dancing With the Stars alum Rocco DiSpirito is talking about the benefits of produce over processed, you know the tent has grown a little bigger.

"It became clear to a bunch of us that not only is it a good idea now, but people are ready to be receptive," says DiSpirito, author of the recent New York Times' bestselling healthy cookbook, Now Eat This!

That's partly because the rock-star status TV chefs enjoy gives them an entree into American kitchens that previous proponents of healthy eating lacked, notes Lee Schrager, founder and organizer of the annual South Beach Wine and Food Festival.

HOLLY FARRELL/ABC

British chef Jamie Oliver is trying to get people in the U.S. to eat healthier in his new TV show Jamie Oliver's Food Revolution.

Oliver, for example, is headlining Jamie Oliver's Food Revolution, an ABC reality show documenting his efforts to change eating habits in a community the network calls the nation's unhealthiest.

Chefs are realizing they have a responsibility to use their influence to foster change, Oliver says. And celebrities often can do that with more panache than traditional nutrition advocates have.

"You don't want to food Nazi the fun out of everything," he says. "You can still cook great things that are calorific, but you just need to intro it with kind of — Look, this is a special occasion, or this is for the holidays, or whatever."

Snappy titles and glamorous stars are new tactics for the eat healthy movement, which in the past has been perceived, fairly or not, as fun-deprived. Even Sesame Street is reaching for star power. The program recently named Art Smith, Oprah Winfrey's former chef, as its healthy eating adviser.

"It's becoming less elitist," says nutrition and policy expert Marion Nestle, who credits first lady Michelle Obama's championship of healthy eating with helping take the issue mainstream.

Deen agrees. "We work on unintimidating foods that mothers and dads can put together pretty easily," she says.

A tipping point in the debate seems to be child obesity, the focus of Obama's campaign. A nation that can gaze with equanimity at racks of XXL clothing for grown-ups has grown less tolerant of needing "husky" jeans for five-year-olds.

Oliver, in the early episodes of his new show at least, has made some converts but also had pushback from people who don't take kindly to an out-of-towner overhauling their diets.

But, he says, it's an effort worth making.

"One doesn't want to suck the life or fun out of food because that would be wrong. But, you know, I think the general world of food — chefs, celebrity chefs, fast-food industry, supermarkets, the 'government food gang' — they all need to do a bit. Hopefully, a bit more than a bit. And if they do, the world will change."

Jamie Oliver's Food Revolution airs Fridays, on ABC & CTV

Polanski attorneys say case is assault on system

DELAYS Roman Polanski's lawyers have filed a last legal volley in a California appeals court, saying that the 33-year-old sex case and its lengthy delays have been an assault on the state's judicial system.

The attorneys said in papers filed Tuesday that the court should order an investigation of judicial misconduct in Polanski's original case and that the Oscar-winning filmmaker should not have to pay for it — an indication that he is running out of funds.

Polanski was arrested six months ago on a fugitive warrant from Los Angeles and is under house arrest in Switzerland. The 76-year-old has mounting debts and no way to earn a living while in custody, his attorneys said.

Director Roman Polanski's lawyers are asking for an investigation of judicial misconduct.

The defence made their latest plea in response to arguments from prosecutors who say Polanski must return from Europe to face sentencing. The defence argued that the director should be sentenced in absentia to time served. The papers were filed in the California 2nd District Court of Appeal.

"It is unjust for a defendant's constitutional rights to be held hostage to the district attorney's office's outright refusal to investigate the misconduct in which it was involved,: said the defence brief.

Most of the 24-page filing was a recitation of facts that have been raised repeatedly by the defence since they first went to court seeking Polanski's freedom. They contend the now deceased judge committed misconduct in the case.

Polanski, the director The Pianist and Chinatown, fled the U.S. in 1978 after pleading guilty to unlawful sexual intercourse with a 13-year-old girl.

He had served part of a 90-day period in prison ordered by the judge for a "diagnostic study." His departure was prompted by the judge's private statements that he planned to renege on the agreement that the study would be Polanski's full sentence, according to documents filed in the case.

The original prosecutor in the case recently gave closed door testimony to that effect, the lawyers have said.

A villain like no other

Gregory Itzin returns to 8th and final season of 24

During its breathless, ticktock eight-season run, 24 has given viewers numerous delights, apart from Jack Bauer's crazy knack for staying alive.

The audience for this rambunctious Fox thriller fondly recalls President David Palmer, a black man in the White House who may have helped normalize that concept for white voters in 2008.

Meanwhile, everyone adores computer whiz Chloe O'Brian, an indispensable if cranky colleague of Bauer's in the Counter Terrorist Unit.

But no one on 24 can overshadow Charles Logan, the former chief executive who commanded the fifth season as scoundrel, boob and treasonous schemer. Deliciously played by Gregory Itzin, President Logan stayed busy at his waffling, coverups, secret deals with terrorists, even an implicit role in Palmer's assassination — all of it done (as Logan never tired of saying) "in the best interests of the country."

Itzin's 24 stint began in the fourth season, as three episodes that featured Logan grew to nine. He dominated in the fifth season, then returned briefly for the sixth, when Martha, his former first lady, tried to stab him to death.

Ultimately thwarted by Bauer (series star Kiefer Sutherland), Logan resigned and was placed under house arrest.

But in TV drama as in the real world, disgraced politicians don't necessarily vanish. They hatch a way to rehabilitate themselves (or their image, at least), then re-enter the arena.

"I'm kind of used to playing villains."
Gregory Itzin

So hail to President Logan in the person of Itzin, who returns for Monday's episode, then continues through the remainder of this season, Day 8, which was recently pronounced the last.

Midway through a season beset by series fatigue and ratings erosion, he could be the spark to send off 24 in a fitting blaze of glory.

"It's pretty nifty to be invited back to this groundbreaking show and be part of how they wrap up the story," he said recently in New York.

Itzin, who turns 62 this month, is a seasoned actor with a wide range of roles under his belt.

The final episode of 24 airs on May 24

The Burlington, Wis., native began his career by studying at San Francisco's American Conservatory Theatre, and besides his many theatre roles, has appeared on scores of television shows including L.A. Law, The Practice and Boston Legal.

This season's crisis du jour focuses on a global peace accord gone sideways, with a threat to nuke Manhattan and the Webcast execution of a key Mideast leader thrown in.

Logan, no stranger to such plights (especially those of his own making), is brought in to consult with President Allison Taylor.

"I'm a little more of a pragmatist, a realist" said Itzin, meaning his presidential alter ego.

As Itzin spoke, Logan was finally, truly over for him.

He had wrapped his 24 scenes little more than a week earlier in Los Angeles.

Then, leaving behind his wife of 30 years, Judie, whom he made clear he was already missing, he had returned to New York to resume preparations for his next project: A starring role on Broadway in an ambitious British import, Enron in which he portrays another world-class scoundrel, Kenneth Lay

"I'm kind of used to playing villains," said Itzin, who, in person, is friendly and engaging. Like all 24 devotees, Itzin, will be watching the final episode on May 24.

By a happy coincidence, he should have that night off.

Oh boy, oh (Scottish comedian) Danny Bhoy

Danny Bhoy

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

COMEDY Most comics spend years performing, dreaming of the day they get booked on Letterman.

But for Scottish comic Danny Bhoy, his appearance last month on the Late Show with David Letterman came pretty much out of the blue.

"I'd been in the U.S. for months and haven't worked, and couldn't get even an opening slot anywhere," says Bhoy, who released his new DVD, Danny Bhoy: Subject To Change, this week.

"And for some bizarre reason, suddenly I get booked on Letterman, which is like the Holy Grail for a lot of comics. Here, I haven't done anything yet, and I've got the biggest gig in the U.S."

Not that Bhoy is exactly unknown.

In Canada, and countries like Australia and New Zealand, he's a sought-after, headliner with a decade of sold-out shows on his resumé.

Despite that world-hopping, Bhoy says his comedy act stays pretty much the same no matter which country he is in.

He claims that Scottish audiences rarely take offense at his hilarious attacks on such local traditions as bagpipe music.

As successful as he's been so far, Bhoy has no plans to follow in the footsteps of a lot of stand-up comics and become an actor.

"I don't want to act," he declares. I prefer doing what I do: Performing live. If I were to do my own show, it wouldn't be me playing a part. I'd just be myself."

Just for laughs

- Danny Bhoy – Subject To Change hit stores this week and will be aired on the Comedy Network on Saturday, April 17.
- Bhoy's Canadian tour begins April 29 in Toronto.
- For more on Bhoy, visit his website at dannybhoy.com.

Caine backs UK Tory plans to help youths

Actor worried youngsters are ignored

Actor Michael Caine offered support Thursday for a U.K. Conservative Party proposal of a civilian service program — drawing on his working-class roots to appeal for help for disaffected youths.

"I'm here because I'm a representative of all those youngsters that have been forgotten in this country."
Michael Caine

The two-time Oscar winning actor appeared on the same stage as U.K. opposition leader David Cameron to support the National Citizen Service.

"You may think to yourself 'what the hell is he doing here, why is he here?'," Caine said after being introduced by Cameron at a news conference. "I'm here because I'm a representative of all those youngsters that have been forgotten in this country."

A supporter of Margaret Thatcher in the 1980s, Caine had been won over by former Prime Minister Tony Blair in Labour's sweep to power in 1997. But Caine has expressed anger over Labour's tax plans — the top bracket income tax rate rose to 50 per cent last week — and threatened to leave the country if taxes went higher.

He said last year he would support Cameron, and arguing no party should serve more than two terms in office.

"My view of politicians is that we elect them as servants," he said later at a visit to a London school. "For two terms they are our servants, the third term they are our masters."

Caine has for decades been one of Britain's most popular and accomplished actors, ranging from early roles in classics like Alfie and Get Carter and The Italian Job to contemporary parts in the high-budget Batman series. He has excelled in comedy, action and dramatic roles for more than half a century.

He has been nominated for six Academy Awards, winning the best supporting actor Oscar in 2000 for The Cider House Rules and in 1987 for Hannah and Her Sisters. He received a knighthood from Queen Elizabeth II in 2000.

The program offers two-month summer social activities such as looking after the elderly. The Labour Party also has proposed a program aimed at young people.

Last April, Prime Minister Gordon Brown announced he'd include a plan to have young people carry out compulsory community service in the party's election manifesto. Under his proposal, young Britons would be expected to carry out 50 hours of volunteer work before the age of 19.

Caine said he was able to pull himself up from unfortunate circumstances — though he acknowledged times had changed. Young people need a second chance, he said.

"What I had was a loving family, a loving father and an education," he said. "And what I didn't have — I didn't have drugs and I didn't have guns.

"You have now a very, very hard core of people who we've got really to save, and that's what attracts me about this."

Haim memorial cancelled

Pal Corey Feldman says mother too distraught for Hollywood service

A public memorial in Los Angeles for Canadian actor Corey Haim will not go ahead as planned.

Friend and former co-star Corey Feldman has written on his blog that after much consideration and planning, Haim's mother decided against holding the memorial.

Feldman says Judy Haim feels it would be too much for her to bear at this time.

Instead, close friends will have a private dinner in Haim's honour.

Haim, 38, died last month in Burbank, Calif., with an enlarged heart, pulmonary congestion and water in his lungs.

The Toronto-born actor rose to stardom in a string of '80s teen films including Lucas and The Lost Boys, but battled drug addiction later in life and suffered financial woes that included his filing for bankruptcy in 1997.

On Tuesday, California Attorney General Jerry Brown said Haim had obtained 553 prescription pills in the two months before his death, including Valium, Vicodin, Xanax and Soma.

He called Haim a "poster child" for prescription drug abuse.

Feldman thanked fans for their kind words left on his blog's comments section and expressed regret that so many were eager to trash Haim.

"I will admit that shockingly there have been some terrible, awful, and heartless messages which you will not find posted here. It's amazing to me how people could be so cruel during a time of such great grief for so many," Feldman wrote, and added that he too felt unfairly targeted by the media.

"I have lost many who were very close to me in a very short time. However that does not stop the press from attacking me. It seems they will not be happy until I'm dead too," Feldman wrote.

"The second I leave my house they follow me, then make a spectacle, and then berate me for trying to get out of the house and live my life. Would they rather I hid in a cave waiting for depression to fully encompass my soul?

"I'm sorry but I choose to live my life and move forward as best as possible. I have a child, therefore I must work. I cannot dwell in misery. Instead I have been planning my future." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Taylor Hicks lights up Toronto stage

Former Idol winner takes on role of Teen Angel in Grease

JOHN KEILLOR
for Metro Canada

The movie musical Grease is pure American iconography.

The stage version of that film, happening now at the Canon Theatre and starring 2006 American Idol winner Taylor Hicks, upgrades this classic.

Hicks performs the role of Teen Angel, originally sung by Frankie Avalon, who crooned Beauty School Dropout for Didi Conn's Frenchy in the 1978 film. The transition from Idol to icon is a welcome challenge for Hicks.

"I feel blessed to sing this role and make that connection, to bring the Teen Angel to a new generation of fans," says Hicks. "We all loved the movie as kids."

Hicks became a TV pop sensation on American Idol, when he was voted to win its fifth season with 63.4 million votes. He followed up his victory with an album that went platinum. His debut single on the Billboard Charts, Do I Make You Proud Now, entered at number one.

Frankie Avalon, the original Teen Angel, had a similar impact on the American pop charts when his single Venus went to number one for five weeks in 1959. He scored big both in the song charts and in '60s summer movies like Beach Blanket, marketed to American teenagers.

Hicks is reviving the Teen Angel. His young fans refer to themselves as the Soul Patrol, and his albums sell well. It's like he's refurbishing Avalon's cameo character, polishing it up for the new millennium.

As a performer, Hicks says he is only sometimes in control of his career, while other times his career is in control of him.

Though he's an active singer-songwriter, putting his stamp on Teen Angel is his current priority. And as an Idol-turned-icon, Hicks puts his own stamp on this production too, singing his own tune, The Distance, as an encore.

Always a good time to party in Miami

KATHLEEN SQUIRES
Metro World News

There's always a good reason to go to Miami — entertainment options in the Magic City are as abundant as palm trees and ocean breezes. Here's where to find the party — and the sandy spots to recover the morning after.

Where to eat

The city's hottest tables span a world of cuisines, from Michael Psilakis' Mediterranean-inspired Eos (viceroymiami.com) to the stylish meat temple STK (onelittlewest12.com). Talavera (talaveraspot.com) wins fans with homey Mexican dishes such as crab enchiladas in guajillo sauce, while Michelle Bernstein's Sra. Martinez (chefmichellebernstein.com) turns out tantalizing tapas.

Where to drink

Louis (louismiami.com) at the Gansevoort South brings Marie Antoinette chic to South Beach, while the decadent gold and black theme at the W's Wall (whotels.com) attracts a sexy scene. Recently renovated 1020 Music Boxx at the Clevelander (clevelander.com) features wall-to-window views of Ocean Drive, and the White Room (whiteroomshows.com) is a favorite for music.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Miami has great places to eat, drink, party and oh yeah the beaches are spectacular.

Get some sun

Bill Baggs Cape Florida State Park (1200 S. Crandon Blvd.) on the southern tip of Key Biscayne is one of Miami's most scenic sites where visitors can explore a historic lighthouse. Secluded Virginia Key Beach South (South of Rickenbacker Causeway), also in Key Biscayne, features a bird sanctuary, walking and bike trails, and fishing. Bal Harbour (96th Street and Haulover Inlet) draws more than shoppers — its mile-long beach is a favorite for joggers. Just north lies Haulover Beach Park (10800 Collins Ave.), a sanctuary for surfing, kite-flying and clothing-optional enthusiasts in search of the best all-over tans.

Rooms with a view

- W South Beach
Modern art-deco masterpiece. 312 rooms all with ocean views and balconies. Features include tranquil paths winding throughout the lush Grove Gardens and Solea Mediterranean restaurant. Package: $609 US a night. (whotel.com)

James breaks silence on sex tapes

CHIVALRY: NOT DEAD, JUST MORTALLY WOUNDED Jesse James is speaking up for the first time since his public apology following the outbreak of his cheating scandal. This time, James tells People magazine that there are no sex tapes out there feature him and estranged wife Sandra Bullock.

"The claims of sex tapes are untrue and completely fabricated," James says. Bullock denied the rumor earlier this week, and James also seems to be commenting on a claim by one of his alleged mistresses that she has around a dozen tapes featuring the Monster Garage star.

Fergie dishes out diet tips

PLUS MY COLONICS, PERSONAL TRAINER AND SPA VACATIONS Black Eyed Peas singer Fergie has come up with several tactics to keep herself from overeating, she admits to Elle magazine. "There are times I play mind tricks on myself, like that the french fries are poison," she says. "With desserts, I'll let myself have just one bite, but I'll look like a freak when I'm eating it, like when I did Duncan Hines commercials as a kid, just savoring every morsel."

Shania to debut comeback series on Oprah channel

GNAW YOUR HEART OUT, MUTT First came heartbreak, then a second chance at love. Next up for country superstar Shania Twain? Her own TV series, people.com reports.

Twain, 44, will star on Why Not? With Shania Twain, an hour-long series premiering on OWN: The Oprah Winfrey Network.

"The show will follow (Twain) as she begins her climb back to the top, a personal journey filled with risk, revelations and unexpected adventures," says a statement from the network.

This won't be Twains first foray in front of the camera since her marriage to Robert "Mutt" Lange fell apart in May 2008 over his relationship with her then-friend – and employee – Marie-Anne Thiébaud.

The country singer has posted several personal videos on her Web site in recent months, chronicling her world travels, fun times with her son Eja, 8, and her blossoming romance with her boyfriend Frédéric, who is Thiébaud's ex-husband.

Cage homes seized by bank

TIME FOR ANOTHER NATIONAL TREASURE SEQUEL, NIC It's been a bad week in the world of real estate for Nicolas Cage. The actor lost property in Malibu and an estate in Bel Air to the bank, which put them up for auction Wednesday, according to TMZ. The only problem is no one bid on them, and they are now property of the bank. Bidding started for the pair of plots in Malibu at $10 million.

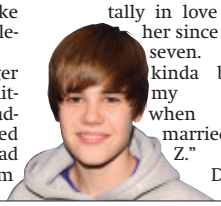
Bieber: Beyonce broke my heart

MY WEE, PRE-PUBESCENT HEART Justin Bieber claims Beyonce Knowles "broke his heart," femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The 16-year-old singer has had a crush on the hitmaker for years and admits he was devastated when he learned she had married long-term boyfriend Jay-Z in April 2008. He said: "I've been totally in love with her since I was seven. She kinda broke my heart when she married Jay-Z."



Despite his sadness at her marriage, the singer got the chance to meet his idol at this year's Grammy Awards.

Recalling the encounter, he said: "It was amazing. I was a little nervous but I told her she was very good-looking. Actually she's super hot." METRO NEWS SERVICES

Whitney out of Paris hospital, 'feeling great'

SHE'S NOT RIGHT, BUT SHE'S OK Whitney Houston is out of the hospital and feeling fine, she insists to People magazine after being treated in Paris for a respiratory infection. "I'm feeling great. I'm just ready to move on and continue my world tour," she says. Houston's hospitalization and the subsequent canceling of several European gigs prompted speculation that the singer's past troubles with drugs had resurfaced.

Dina Lohan blasts ex-hubby's new engagement

HOW DARE HE TAKE THE ATTENTION OFF ME! OH WAIT ... Dina Lohan isn't too impressed with the news that Michael Lohan is engaged to former Star magazine reporter Kate Major. "It's certainly a marriage made in tabloid heaven," Dina tells Radar Online.

"I mean, Kate dated Hailey Glassman's ex, Jon Gosselin, then she's best friends with Michael's ex Erin, and now she's engaged to Michael. It all sounds a bit incestuous to me." But that's not all Michael's ex-wife takes issue with. "Where he's finding money for engagement rings and weddings I don't know." she adds. "He's nine months behind in his child support."

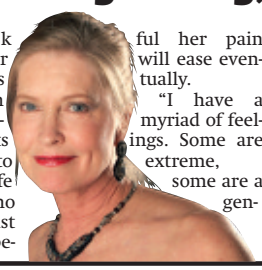
Swayze widow grieving, but hopeful

SWAY STRONG Patrick Swayze's widow says her grief over his death feels like she has been set on fire, femalefirst.co.uk reports. Lisa Niemi admits she is still struggling to come to terms with life without the actor — who died of cancer aged 57 last September — but is hopeful her pain will ease eventually.



"I have a myriad of feelings. Some are extreme, some are a general malaise, sometimes it's like someone has poured gasoline on me and set me on fire," she said. "I just have to have faith that one day it will turn around."

Despite her sorrow, 53-year-old Niemi believes she will find love again one day. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Metro Recipe of the Day

Minted Asparagus and Pea soup

INGREDIENTS:

250 g asparagus spears
1 tbsp olive oil
2 shallots, chopped
175 g potatoes, peeled and chopped
150 g frozen peas
2 2/3 cups vegetable stock
small sprig of fresh mint
4 tbsp Greek-style yogourt
40 g toasted pine nuts

METHOD:

1. Snap off any woody ends from asparagus stalks at point where they break easily. Cut off tender tips and reserve. Roughly chop remainder.

2. Heat olive oil in large, heavy pot and add shallots, chopped asparagus and potatoes. Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 6-8 minutes or until tender.

3. Reserve handful of peas and add remainder to pot with stock and mint sprig. Cook for few minutes if potato is not quite tender. Season, then tip into food processor or blender and process to smooth purée. Return to pot.

4. Blanch asparagus tips and reserved peas in pot of boiling water 2 minutes. Drain. Bring soup to boil, then stir in blanched asparagus tips and peas. Ladle into bowls. Swirl spoonful of yogourt on to each and scatter pine nuts over top.

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
You are in one of your devil-may-care moods at the moment and that's good because the more risks you take the more you will achieve.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
Certain people may be annoyingly obstructive but there is nothing they can do to stop you reaching your target.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
If you want to impress those you live and work with just be yourself. There is no need to pretend you know more than you do.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
If someone annoys you today you will let them know in no uncertain fashion that their actions and opinions mean nothing to you.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
It may be a while before you can expand your horizons fully but there is still plenty you can do to make life more interesting.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
If you continue to work behind the scenes you will accomplish something that not only brings you happiness but impresses some very important people too.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
The cracks in a relationship have got too wide to paper over, so it's time to make a decision about its future.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
Nothing happens by chance. The things you are experiencing now are largely the result of the thoughts and feelings you had in the past.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
Others may say you lack ambition but the fact is you cannot be bothered to take certain things seriously. There is more to life than money and getting ahead.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
If an offer falls short of what you expect today you are advised to reject it and move on. They obviously don't value your true worth.

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
Whatever your duties and commitments may be you must still find time to do the things that you enjoy. Whether or not they are useful is beside the point.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
Try not to be too critical of other people's efforts today. No doubt you only want to help but a colleague's or loved one's confidence is fragile.

20-Minute Makeover

Pitch in Friday, April 23 at 2 p.m. and help clean litter from our streets. Reuse a small plastic bag from home to collect your litter. Beginning April 8, get your free gloves and GLAD® garbage bags – to hold your small full bags – from participating Pizza Pizza® outlets and Toronto Community and Civic Centres (extra gloves available only at community/civic centres) while supplies last.

Visit toronto.ca/litter to see if your GTA community is participating in the 20-Minute Makeover.

The next day, on April 24, you can tidy up your neighbourhood as part of Mayor David Miller's Community Clean-Up Day. Register your group by April 16 to arrange litter pick-up for either event at toronto.ca/litter or call 311.
